

Volume I, Section 1 - Document Standards

Overview

The Common Origination and Disbursement System (COD) Technical Reference includes information for schools using the COD System. Beginning in the 2005-2006 award year, all schools are required to be Full Participants using the XML Common Record.

The 2005-2006 COD Technical Reference contains message classes, edits, record layouts, implementation guides, and supporting information for COD Pell Grant and Direct Loan Full Participants using the XML Common Record.

How to Use This Technical Reference

The COD Technical Reference is an operational guide that informs schools, vendors, and third-party servicers of how to transmit Pell Grant and Direct Loan Origination and Disbursement data to the COD System. In particular, this Technical Reference provides the record layout and data elements that are required for the COD System to successfully process submitted records as well as the record layout and data elements for the receipts and responses that are returned to participants by the COD System. The information provided in this Technical Reference is not intended to reflect all Federal regulations that govern the Pell Grant and Direct Loan programs and with which all participants must comply. As such, schools, vendors, and third-party servicers must refer to these regulations and documents such as the Federal Student Aid Handbook and Dear Colleague Letters for guidance on regulatory compliance.

The 2005-2006 COD Technical Reference is comprised of six separate volumes that contain key 2005-2006 development information for COD Full Participants. To use the COD Technical Reference effectively, choose the appropriate volume for your needs. Each volume has its own table of contents and individual sections.
